

Forty Under 40 > Class of 2015 > Michael B. Glezer

Michael B. Glezer, 39

Wagman, Inc., President & CEO

Foundational principles of success, including the desire to always improve and the ability to do the right thing, motivate Michael B. Glezer. "Oftentimes, I find myself taking new responsibilities or solving a new problem because it's the right thing to do," Glezer said.

He describes himself as adaptive, likely a trait he learned while living in Mexico for three years — a time that he attributes as a great experience in appreciating other cultures, helping those in need and remaining grateful for what you have.

Professionally, Glezer turns to the trusted advisers of the family business for guidance and perspective. He advises others to create core values that are non-negotiable, both personally and professionally, including mutual respect, which can apply to any situation.

Glezer has always been interested in many things, including potential careers as an astronaut, stuntman, airplane pilot and business owner. He's currently celebrating 15 years at Wagman.
